A message from the new Artistic & Executive Director

It is with tremendous excitement that I welcome you to Schubert Club's 145th season. I am beginning my tenure as the new leader of this community treasure with a great debt of gratitude to the visionaries who came before me, starting with the group of music lovers who founded "The Ladies Musicale" in Saint Paul on an autumn afternoon in 1882 and continuing to my immediate predecessor, Barry Kempton, who led Schubert Club with distinction for nearly fifteen years.

As we look to the future, we have an opportunity to build on that legacy by expanding how people encounter, understand, and participate in music. Our vision is that every interaction with Schubert Club—whether through a concert, the Music Museum, an educational program, a scholarship, or a community partnership—invites deeper curiosity, meaningful connection, and a lifelong relationship with music.

From Lise Davidsen's eagerly anticipated recital of Schubert songs to Duo Pleyel's exploration of two of our historical keyboards on the stage of the Ordway Concert Hall, to Conrad Tao's four distinctive programs as part of his Featured Artist residency, this season promises to be one for the ages. If you have never experienced Schubert Club Mix, our series that blurs the edges of classical music, this is the year to dive in. When you hear our historic 1824 Bechstein grand piano at the Ordway, you will be inspired to see it up close at our free Music Museum at the Landmark Center, followed by a free Courtroom Concert featuring the Twin Cities' own remarkable musicians and composers.

Our commitment to making music accessible is about carrying this art form into the future. Our educational and family programming builds a love of music in our youngest audience members. Children and students can attend our concerts free of charge, and our scholarship programs have supported young musicians in their musical studies for over 100 years.

Welcome to Schubert Club! You're already a member.
